DIVERSIFYING INCOME OPPORTUNITIES on SMALL WOODLANDS

Small woodland owners in the Pacific Northwest manage some of the most biologically rich and productive forests in the world. By understanding the unique markets and tools available to them, woodland owners can develop a financial model that optimizes the revenue potential of their forests while protecting the conservation value of the land for generations to come.

This one-day seminar will introduce landowners to a series of strategies and tools that can help them reduce management costs, diversify revenue streams and protect the ecological values of their land into the future.

Seminar attendees will be invited back to one of two special afternoon workshops in July where they will have an opportunity to talk one-on-one with specialists about how the various income and conservation strategies can be applied specifically to their forestland.

Topics will include:

- FSC "green" Certification and Markets
- Selling Carbon Offsets
- Small-scale Wood Processing and Value-added Sales
- Current Use Taxation
- Working Forest Conservation Easements
- Conservation Funding Programs for Small Woodland Owners
